Bradley Middle School Summer Reading

During the school year, students at Bradley are expected to read every night. We expect students to continue to find books, magazines, and articles to read throughout the summer.

This summer, we are encouraging students to read books and articles that will remind them about experiences they've had in which they've overcome an obstacle and to teach them how to experience success through effort and perseverance!

We want all of our students to develop critical thinking skills, leadership skills, and approach experiences with a growth mindset. Students that approach experiences with a growth mindset, see failure as an opportunity to learn and experience growth. They will see that success can come from dedication and hard work, and that learning and resilience are essential to grow in their learning and to accomplish great things.

We encourage our students to enjoy some of these titles over the summer and think about the opportunities they have for growth and success in the coming school year. On the back you will find summer reading opportunities for students. Please look these over and consider participating in these fun activities!
